LITTLE JENNIFER KEATOR found an armload of cuddly bunnies at the Gordon Harlander home last week, just in time to whisper a message to be passed along to the REAL Easter Bunny, who has never forgotten his small friends in Carmel Valley. Giving the overworked rabbit a helping hand Sunday will be the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department and auxiliary, which will once again sponsor an Easter Egg Hunt, beginning at 1 p.m. by the fire station. For other Easter events, see stories in this issue.

BOB WOOD REPORTS. . .

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD,
ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

The flu bug made the rounds in our family and he batted an even thousand percent. He never missed a soul, except possibly the family dog, at least she didn't complain to anyone. This same flu bug hit every member of our Sacramento office force and even laid low our District Secretary in Salinas. (I hope your family fared better percentage wise.)

One of the most perplexing dilemmas to face educators and law-makers alike -- the great inequity in the funding of California's school districts through property taxes.

Spokesmen for school districts throughout the State say they are laying off teachers, curtailing programs and eliminating services if more State money is not made available. In many cases, the local property taxpayer has reached his absolute limit.

One of the proposals expected to come before us soon is a Statewide property tax to pay for all local public schools. If a State property tax were imposed, taxes now levied by each individual district would be eliminated. In its place school taxes would be paid to the State and the State would reimburse each school district on a per pupil basis.

The State Board of Education has long held that a Statewide property tax to support the schools would be in the best interests of all Californians.

Experts are quick to point out that local economic conditions, particularly a concentration of industry or lack of it, makes a great deal of difference in how a school is funded through taxes.

A district in one county, for instance, has an assessed valuation of more than $900,000 for each student and no financial crisis, while other districts have less than $10,000 assessed valuation for each student and are extremely hard pressed for money just to keep operating.

It would appear that because assessed valuation, tax rates and State aid vary for each district, children in some districts are receiving poorer educations than those in richer districts.

The end of the road has been reached by many of these poorer districts. State aid to schools has declined by 2 to 5 percent in the last three years, and districts have gone to voters for higher local taxes only to be turned down in about 50 percent of the cases.

What all this boils down to is that we as Legislators are faced with three basic choices on school district financing. We can do nothing, which would obviously accomplish nothing except dig us a deeper hole. We can adopt the administration's proposed budget -- with about the same amount of money for schools as last year -- and let the local districts attempt to seek voter approval for local tax hikes. Or we can pass legislation which will give public schools enough money to handle their needs for the next year.

Perhaps a meeting of the minds is within sight.

OLAF encouraged by pledges of support

The Odello Land Acquisition Fund committee (OLAF) met Monday afternoon to discuss plans for a public fund-raising campaign to purchase the Odello Ranch.

Attorney Fred Farr, who heads the group, said he was encouraged by the continuing stream of pledges that OLAF is receiving from individuals. He said he is continuing to contact foundations and conservation groups that might contribute money to purchase the land, and is also exploring various avenues of possible federal support.

Farr also said he hopes to meet with landowners and developers to discuss possible alternatives for the use of presently undeveloped property.

The Rhyming Philosopher

AGENDA

The blue of mountain lilacs tell me April's here,
The linnet's glad return announces nesting,
While dainty apple blossoms scent the atmosphere,
And love is all around and manifesting.

The tenet and the mood of mating flames the heart,
And if I may be pardoned for suggesting,
I see no reason why we two should stay apart
When Nature makes her lure so interesting.

The verdant hills glow green and sparkle in the dew
As warm Spring rains provide the earth its breasting,
Where trees and birds and animals may blithely woo
With no discordant sound of false protesting.

Then come my love and take my outstretched hand
To wander with our wondering and questing,
As seeking happiness and faith in Fairyland
We leave behind the world and its molesting.

And if by chance we lose ourselves in Paradise,
Think only of the fervour and the resting,
For love is Nature's way and God's sublime device
To make existence colorful and zesting.

TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor:

As chairman of the Red Cross Fund Drive for the residential area of the Upper Valley this year, it is my pleasure to announce that the wonderful people of the Upper Valley have contributed to the Fund beyond my highest hopes.

Final accounts have not yet been tabulated but I am sure we have reached the goal set -- at least the goal I had in mind as our percentage of the overall goal for our general area.

A great big "THANK YOU, THANK YOU" to all the kind and willing workers who so generously donated their time and efforts to make this year's Fund Drive an overwhelming success.

My most sincere thanks to Mrs. J.L. Dionne, Mrs. William Cranston, Mrs. Stanley Roberts, Mrs. E.P. Foote, Mrs. Mark Fields, Mrs. John Storm, Mrs. Alex Weygers, Mrs. Gordon Harlander, Mrs. George Clifford, Mrs. Francis Dane, Mrs. J.H. Hughes, Mrs. Kirk Gayman, Mrs. Joseph Sturgill, Mrs. David Morris, Mrs. Calvin Garner, Mrs. George Hobbs, Mrs. Jack Deas, Mrs. Dale Wilson, Mrs. Shepard Peterson, Mrs. R.D. Lorenz, Mrs. B.N. Ahl, Mrs. Luther Washington, Mrs. Walter Mauzey, Mrs. M. Nedeff, Mrs. Philip Walker, Mrs. P.W. Mothersill, Mrs. Nick Aliotti, Mrs. James Cecka, Mrs. Ken Korver, Mrs. Chris Spaulding, Mrs. Tom Farrell, Mrs. Arthur Dresser, Mrs. Tom Hagn, Mrs. Roger Sherman, Mrs. William Neidinger, Mrs. Leoncio Collas, Mrs. Augie Acuna, Mrs. Judith Nicholsen, Mrs. Mary Ann Yuma, Mrs. Don Swiess, Mrs. Larry Cummings and her daughter, Mrs. Rex Pryer, Miss Linda Ford, Miss Laura Ford, Mrs. Neil Sparks, Mrs. M.L. Blevens, Mrs. Eugene Baker, Mrs Ginnie Murphy and her daughter, Mrs. Russ Murray, Mrs. Mark Zerbin, Mrs. Thomas Verga, Mrs. Lloyd Swanson, Mrs. William Farr, Mrs. John Conklin.

Without them we could not have gone over the top.

Appreciatively,
MRS. STEPHEN SCHAFFER

To the Editor,

In spite of valid and logical objections to the Odello project, five members of the Monterey Peninsula Area Planning Commission voted in favor of the project. It is interesting that none of the five are residents of either Carmel or Carmel Valley, and presumably, being a non-elected body, care little or nothing for the voters' and taxpayers' interest, to say nothing of the scenic beauty of the area involved.

It is this kind of short-sighted and unprofessional planning which had already resulted in some pretty tacky looking development at the mouth of the Valley and along our supposedly Scenic Highway 1. It will undoubtedly result in further unattractive urban sprawl with the Riverwood and Val Verde developments, where quantity will replace quality.

It appears that those who oppose the Odello project are making every effort to propose a satisfactory alternative, rather than harassing the Odellos.

There seems to be little reason for such great haste in a matter that is vital to the whole community, and it is devoutly to be hoped that the County Planning Commission will approach the problem with caution, intelligence and proper study of both the economic and environmental impact. A six months freeze will neither make nor break anyone.

If, as a community, we wish to continue to be a lure for tourists and conventions, then let all concerned start working toward saving something for the tourist to see.

Jack Curtis will autograph copies of his new novel, "Banjo" at the Thunderbird bookshop this Saturday from 6 to 8 p.m.

Set in Kansas during the era of prohibition, the novel tells the story of a naive young man who becomes involved with a blues singer and bootleggers.

Curtis lives in Big Sur and is the author of "The Kloochman" and several volumes of poetry.

Schedule of Carmel Valley hearings

Odello Rancho development -- Planning Commission hearing on rezoning continued to July 28.

Val Verde Drive development -- Planning Commission hearing on use permit and design approval continued to May 26.

Hacienda Carmel rezoning -- Planning Commission hearing continued to April 28.

Carmel Valley Airport -- Board of Supervisors to hear appeal of the Committee for Peace and Quiet from Planning Commission's decisions supporting the airport on May 11, 2 p.m.

Dr. Joseph Noto's trailer park -- Board of Supervisors to hear appeal from decision of Planning Commission denying rezoning on Schulte Road for trailer park on June 22.

Endorse new Hillside Zoning...

Many Valley issues debated by CVPOA

By JUDITH EISNER

Although Ed Lee, vice president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association chaired last Thursday evening's board of directors meeting in president George Sackman's absence, the meeting was dominated by the suggestions and fervor of George Lockwood.

Items on the agenda included discussion of an application for ST (special treatment) zoning for Hacienda Carmel; the granting to California American Water Co. of another use permit for a new well behind the Begonia Gardens; a recapitulation of the Val Verde issue; the Odello ranch development; a 15-unit apartment complex in the Village; and a new look at incorporation for Carmel Valley.

In dealing with the rezoning of Hacienda Carmel, George Lockwood expressed "concern about the use of ST zoning every time anyone has a problem."

Col. St. E.P. Tyner, however, said he wasn't worried about establishing a precedent in ST zoning. Although he did not endorse the adoption of the ST zoning for Hacienda Carmel, he felt that so far it had been the only positive suggestion offered.

The CVPOA decided to take a position "strongly opposed to any modification of the "G" zoning now in effect at the Hacienda, but would "reluctantly endorse ST zoning" if no alternative was available.

Turning to the Cal-Am well issue, Ed Lee recapitulated the reports and findings of two professors on the death of the riparian forest adjacent to Cal-Am's existing wells.

Even though the water company reluctantly admitted that it was responsible for the death of the trees, Lee said sadly, "I think it's a dead issue—literally."

George Lockwood, however, had other ideas.

"What about going into court?" he asked.

Lockwood stated that it was illegal to pump water from one watershed to another if the water has a beneficial use in the first watershed.

Lee concurred that he had been advised by an attorney that property owners directly affected by the new well could seek an injunction on this basis, but he would not recommend that the CVPOA take such action.

Lockwood, with some warmth, averred that "a public utility must be responsive to the wishes of the public.

"I'm not sure that losing vegetation in Carmel Valley isn't important enough to take some steps," he continued. "I think just because the supervisors say no doesn't mean we have to accept it. The people in Carmel Valley have not thought of going into court on anything."

Col. Tyner took exception, stating he felt it best to hold the matter in abeyance.

"The people who are going to suffer don't want to take the castor oil," he said, "and the CVPOA's done an awful lot of castor oil getting for the community.

"We have enough fights that the people want us to fight without getting into this," he finished.

"When are the people going to wake up to the fact that they're going to lose the central core of Carmel Valley?" cried Lockwood bitterly, referring to the destruction of the Carmel River.

On the matter of hillside zoning, Ed Lee recommended the CVPOA "accept, endorse and stand behind the new ordinance."

Lockwood agreed that the proposed new ordinance represented "a substantial improvement over the last."

A resolution was carried unanimously to strongly recommend the adoption of the new ordinance.

The primary concern in discussion of the Odello ranch development was with potential flood and earthquake dangers.

"The Planning Commission should be very concerned about flooding in a $65 million development," began Lockwood. "Potential homeowners should be aware of the danger, and there will also be county roads involved.

"The county should put the burden of proof on the developer to prove that this type of damage will not occur," he added.

To this end, he urged that City Reconstruction Company, the proposed developers of the 292-acre artichoke ranch, be required to build scale models of the Carmel River flood plain and conduct tests on open-channel flooding.

A motion was carried to write to the Planning Commission urging that "two points of vital importance be included as part of their proposed studies of the Odello property—flooding and earthquake damage."

A brief discussion ensued regarding the undergrounding of utility lines from the mouth of the Valley to Middle School.

"We've whipped Willard (Supervisor Willard Branson) pretty well in the past," said Lockwood, "and I kind of think we ought to write him a letter to thank him for this." The motion was carried.

The next item on the agenda was that of a 15-unit apartment complex to be built just below the Village Center on a 15,000 square foot parcel.

Lockwood expressed distress that the Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee's unanimous rejection of design approval for the complex was ignored. "It looks like a barracks. The crux of the matter is that it just doesn't fit into the area. The builder could spend more money and make it more appealing," he said of the 3-story stucco building.

Lockwood was authorized by the CVPOA to carry on negotiations with the Village Committee of the Chamber of Commerce on possible recourses in this matter.

Brief mention was made of the Val Verde rezoning, to which Lockwood commented, "Have we exhausted our options? In essence, they called our bluff. I don't think it's a good idea to instigate a suit and then drop it and not pick it up again."

It was felt by the rest of the board, however, that Val Verde was another dead issue.

The final issue of the evening opened once again the possibilities of incorporation for Carmel Valley.

"The Planning Commission is so overloaded it can't give adequate time to zoning matters," said Lockwood, "and it's going to get worse."

The directors expressed interest in getting together a committee which would "roll up their shirtsleeves and take another hard look at incorporation," and tabled the matter for the next meeting.

Weary Planners continue Val Verde and Hacienda issues

Although the lengthy Odello hearing all but engulfed the planning commission's agenda last week, three other matters of interest to Carmel Valley should not go unnoticed.

Arbor Development Co. was scheduled to present its plans for a 45-unit subdivision on Val Verde Drive before the planning commission Wednesday night in an application for a use permit and design approval.

But after looking at the overflow crowd on hand for the Odello hearing, and seeing how late the proceedings were running, attorney George Walker asked the commission to continue the Val Verde hearing to a later date.

The commission gladly agreed to the continuance, and tabled the matter until May 26.

The Riverwood development, also up for design approval, had also been listed on the planning commission's agenda for early in the evening. But it wasn't until almost 1 a.m. that the weary commissioners had a chance to look over the drawings for the 150 two-story townhouses. No one was in a mood for further argument, and the design approval was granted at 1:05 a.m.

One of many issues which had caused the evening session to start so late was a lengthy and sometimes angry hearing over a request by Hacienda Carmel for ST (special treatment) zoning.

Attorney Myron Etienne presented the case for the 300 Hacienda residents, who face a peculiar legal problem because the Hacienda is no longer a State-licensed rest home.

When Hacienda Carmel was built in 1962, it received a use permit under the provisions of the "G" zone, which allows State-licensed rest homes among various other possible uses. Then, in 1966, the retirement community decided not to renew its license because of new regulations established by the State which it felt were unacceptable. By losing its license, it also lost its legal status under the county zoning ordinance.

Therefore, Etienne said, ST zoning with a density of 7.5 units per acre would give the property legal zoning stature once again.

The issue became somewhat confused when a resident of Hacienda Carmel, George Hattie, read a letter from the State Department of Public Health which said the Hacienda's license for its infirmary had been renewed.

Richard Baumhoff, president of the Hacienda Carmel Association, later told the Outlook that the infirmary license, which had been allowed to lapse for almost a year, was something totally separate from rest home licenses which are approved by the State Department of Social Welfare. The State social Welfare license is the one that was dropped in 1966, Baumhoff said, and that is the one which will not be renewed because the Hacienda is not now and does not plan to be a rest home.

At last week's hearing, strong opposition to the rezoning came from the Carmel Area Coalition, which pointed out that approval of the high density rezoning could set a precedent for other developments in Carmel Valley.

Realtor Nancy Strathmeyer also objected, noting that ST zoning would have the additional side effect of legalizing a commercial real estate office on residential property. Hacienda Carmel has continued to operate its tract real estate office since 1962, despite strong objections from the Carmel Board of Realtors which feels this is an improper use of residential property under zoning laws.

After more than an hour of debate, commissioner Keith Evans moved for approval of the rezoning, but the motion was defeated five to three. Chairman Edward Marcucci and Darrell Bengard of King City voted with Evans.

The matter was then continued to April 28.

Local Citizen's Committee seeks creation of 'greenbelt' district

A citizens' committee backed by the Sierra Club, Nature Conservancy and the Audubon Society took the first legal step Monday to have a large section of the Monterey Peninsula incorporated as a Regional Park and Open Space District.

Attorney Sean Flavin filed the application for incorporation with the Local Agency Formation Committee (LAFCO) in Salinas. LAFCO will hold a public hearing on the proposal on Tuesday, April 27.

Flavin said the purpose of the district would be to acauire land and hold it as an open space or greenbelt area. This could be done by purchasing the land, receiving it as a gift or, in some cases, through condemnation.

The proposed district would have the same boundaries as the Monterey Peninsula College school district. That is a combination of three smaller school districts—the Carmel Unified School District, the Monterey Unified School District and the Pacific Grove Unified School District. Roughly speaking, this takes in an area extending from Marina to Anderson Landing south of Big Sur, and up Carmel Valley as far east as Jamesburg.

Flavin said the proposed district would be financed by a maximum 10 cent property tax. He said the tax base within the boundaries is approximately $275,000,000, which would generate $275,000 a year if this were approved. This would mean a cost of $10 a year for a $40,000 home.

The idea to form a Regional Park District is an outgrowth of a public hearing held by the Sierra Club a few months ago to focus public attention on the need to acquire undeveloped land for greenbelt areas. The proposal has no direct connection with efforts to purchase the Odello Ranch.

Provisions for such a district are spelled out in the Regional Park District law, which was amended in 1970 to include provisions for acquiring open space lands.

The one regional park district now in existence is in the East Bay. Flavin said efforts are now underway to include portions of San Mateo and Santa Clara counties in a similar district.

If LAFCO approves the boundaries for the Monterey Peninsula district, Flavin said the next step would be for the citizens' group to get the signatures of 5,000 registered voters on a petition urging formation of the district.

Next the district would have to be approved by the County Board of Supervisors, and finally it would have to be voted into existence at a general election. Falvin said he is hopeful that the proposal can be presented to voters next November.

If established, the district would be run by an elected board of five or seven directors. There would be an administrative director and a very small staff.

Flavin emphasized that the district would not be managing land as such or operating a park system in competition with the county. Its purpose would be simply to acquire land for open space and to set priorities for the purchase of land with the tax money collected.

If it became necessary to develop some of the land for recreational use, Flavin said the district would then transfer the land to the county to operate as a park.

"I don't think any of this is a panacea," Flavin said, "but it should help save some land."

Water Company wins approval for new well in mid--Valley

The California-American Water Company finally won approval to drill a new well behind the Begonia Gardens in the mid-Valley last week.

The Board of Supervisors voted 3 to 1 to issue the use permit, subject to several stringent conditions:

1. The water company will have to furnish proof in writing that it has exhausted all possibilities to alternative routes to the 2.5 acre site before it can put in a new road that would cut within six feet of the front porch of the home of Mrs. Alexander Strachwitz.

2. The water company must maintain the new site and the area around the older Berwick well in top condition. The Berwick well site was mentioned because residents have complained of its shabby appearance.

3. The water company will have to provide water at its property line to all property owners who wish to use it for irrigation of trees that might be affected by the drilling of the new well.

Board members made it clear that the company's facility would be checked regularly to make sure all conditions are being met.

In granting the use permit, the board turned down an appeal by Mrs. Strachwitz from the earlier approval granted by the Planning Commission.

Ed Lee, vice president of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association, had also protested the new well on the basis it will further reduce the water table in the mid-Valley and cause more trees to die.

After the hearing, Supervisor Willard Branson praised Lee for his long, thoughtful struggle to preserve the ecology of the area and to point up the need for strict conditions on the use permit.

It's not a 'moratorium', but

Four-month delay on Odello rezoning cheers development opponents

BY PAT GRIFFITH

Before taking up consideration of the Odello ranch development last week, Planning Commission chairman Edward Marcucci held up a plump artichoke and read the note which accompanied it: "A rose is a rose is a rose."

By the time the epic hearing was over, almost four hours later, opponents of the $60 million development were chortling that a moratorium by any other name sounds just as sweet.

Their smiles came after the Planning Commission voted unanimously to continue consideration of the Odello ranch rezoning and related density issues to July 28.

The four-month delay, one of the longest ever called by the Planning Commission, was emphatically not intended in any way as a "moratorium" on development per se. Commissioners agreed the time was needed to give the planning staff an opportunity to study complex questions of flooding and flood plain zoning, and also for the developers to submit a detailed subdivision map.

But the practical effect is that backers of OLAF (the Odello Land Acquisition Fund) headed by attorney Fred Farr have four months in which to raise funds to purchase the 292-acre ranch for a park or open space area without fear that it will be rezoned in the interim. And while this is not the six months' moratorium recommended by the Lower Valley Advisory Board, the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association and several other groups, it is much more then many conservationists, in private, had dared hope for.

For brothers Bruno and Emilio Odello, president Don Whiteman of the City Reconstruction Company and others connected with the development, the long delay came as an unexpected blow.

"This is the worst decision I've seen the Planning Commission make in the 10 years I've been coming here," explained Carl Hooper of George Bestor and Associates, engineers for the project. "They sat up there and told us how much they liked the general idea of the plans, and then they turned right around and gave the opponents just what they wanted."

The Odello brothers were obviously frustrated and angered by the decision. They had opened the hearing by noting that for five years it has been general knowledge in the community that their artichoke ranch was in financial difficulty. Any delay in rezoning, they had warned, might cause CRC to withdraw.

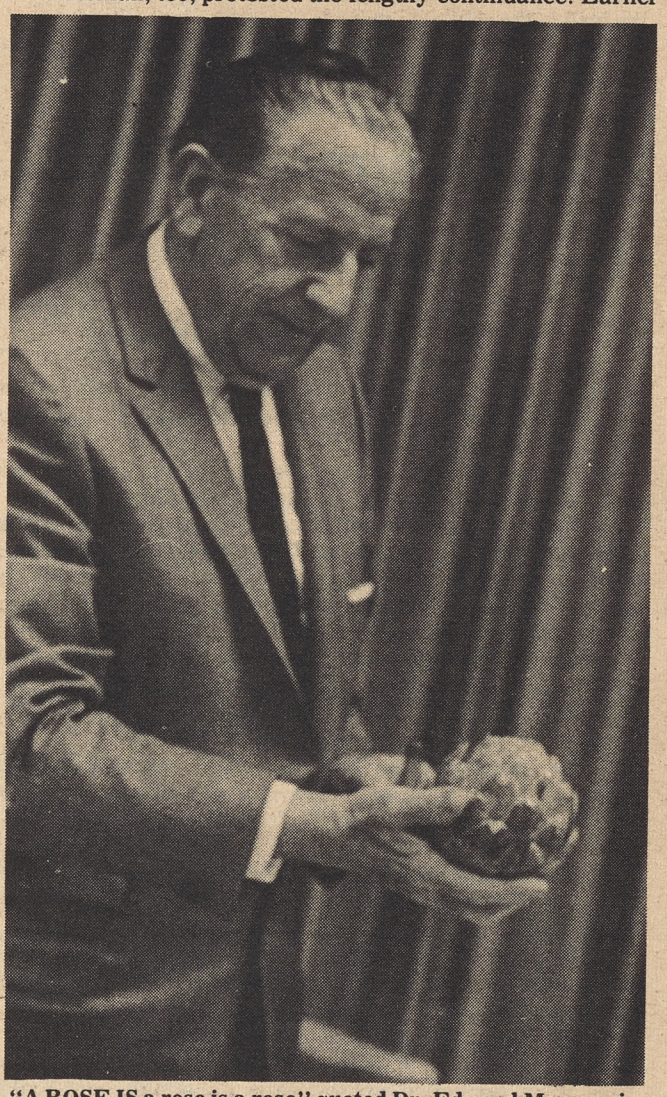
Whiteman, too, protested the lengthy continuance. Earlier in the evening he had set forth a proposal asking for prompt approval of rezoning "without undue delays or moratoriums." In return, CRC would wait 30 days to see if the community could raise the first $250,000 needed to purchase the property.

If this condition were met, Whiteman had continued, then CRC would wait another 90 days to see if the acquisition fund reached $1 million. If that point were reached, Whiteman had said that he would wait still further to see if the deal could be closed.

"As long as these conditions are met, we agree not to file for a use permit," he had said. "We are willing to have our interests purchased at cost, and with no profit included."

As the hearing concluded, he reminded the commissioners of these conditions and said CRC might have to reconsider its involvement in view of the delay on rezoning.

However, as of Monday morning, there was no indication that CRC would pull out of the project at this stage.



"A ROSE IS a rose is a rose" quoted Dr. Edward Marcucci as he held up an artichoke that had been left for him at last week's Planning Commission hearing on the Odello development. A member of the Odello family in the audience, glimpsing the brownish outer leaves on the artichoke, gasped in half-jest "That certainly can't be one of OURS!"

LONG, HOT HEARING

The hearing in the Board of Supervisors chambers began at 8:55 p.m., almost an hour and a half past the scheduled time. The planning commission, which had been in session since 9 a.m., was running late, and didn't recess for dinner until almost 8 p.m.

The stuffy room was packed, as more than 300 persons, including several children, crowded the aisles, sat on the floor and patiently stood four and five rows deep across the back. The air conditioning was not turned on, and as the long evening wore on, one woman fainted. Still others, standing in the corridor outside the room, gradually drifted away when it became obvious they would not be able to hear the proceedings.

At least half the crowd present wore green-lettered lapel badles reading "I am FOR the ODELLOS."

Both sides presented a series of witnesses in an attempt to avoid repetition and to keep discussion focused on pertinent issues.

Most persons in the audience as well as the commissioners were already familiar with the basic development proposal for 944 residential units and 900-resort-motel units. So Kalvin Platt, making the presentation for architects Sasaki Walker of San Francisco, concentrated on answering objections raised at earlier hearings held in Carmel and Carmel Valley.

Anticipating that opponents would stress potential flood problems, Platt said that the lagoons planned for the center of the property would provide extra storage capacity during periods of heavy rainfall.

He noted that the lagoons would be four feet lower than the residential areas, with greenways inbetween, so that "therefore there is great capability of holding water for short periods of time."

Platt also countered arguments against the proposed density of 6.3 units per acre by saying it would be identical to the density now found in Carmel.

Basically, Platt said, the community is faced with three choices: buying the land for public use; allowing development under existing zoning, which could result in 60-foot lots along the highway and a solid mass of one-acre parcels on the rest of the land; or acceptance of a major planned development.

FISH SPEAKS

Platt was followed to the microphone by rancher Stuyvesant Fish, who said he wanted to make it very clear that he was not there to plead the case for more developments in Carmel Valley.

"I've argued and fought against development on many cases," he commented, "although admittedly and sadly to no avail."

Fish said that while it is his "fervent hope" that OLAF will be able to purchase the property he feels that the planning commission has an obligation to honor the provisions of the Three Ranches Plan and allow the Odellos to develop their property.

"The Odellos have relied upon and put their trust in a contractual agreement made five years ago," Fish said. "This was considered, until the present, to be a bona fide contract."

If the Three Ranches Plan is now scrapped, Fish said, it would be comparable to the Indian treaties that were agreed to by the government and then deliberately broken in years past.

"If this course is pursued, a Pandora's box will be opened," he warned. "I hope and we all hope that there will not be a polarization here, but realism ... and if this land is to be bought, please let it be done with equity, honor and good faith."

His comments were greeted with applause from all sections of the room.

Arthur Oppenheimer, trustee of the 19,900-acre San Carlos Ranch, came from San Francisco to speak up for the Odellos, and said that if the Three Ranches Plan is shelved, Rancho San Carlos may be the next large holding to be developed.

"The citizens of the Carmel Valley should be grateful for the open space they have thus far enjoyed," Oppenheimer said in a prepared statement. "The large land owners should be applauded for keeping their holdings intact thus far. They have subsidized the Carmel Valley residents by paying for services that they do not receive. Our taxes for schools, sewers, streets, police and firemen probably run more than the total taxes paid by most in attendance at these public meetings, and these are services we do not enjoy.

"How much longer can we continue to pay our high tax load and leave our lands undeveloped? We would like to think it will be many years, but conditions can change ...

"If the citizens of the Carmel Valley can have the Three Ranches Plan destroyed, then our plans for the future are in jeopardy and Rancho San Carlos will have to reconsider its future development immediately."

Also speaking on behalf of the Odello development were Pat O'Malley of Mission Fields, who said the plans are "neither immoral nor a threat to the public welfare," and Russell Giles, who estimated the development would produce over $1 million in taxes while not costing the county anything for sidewalks, lighting, street maintenance, care of the lagoon and parkways or for welfare payments. Giles said that because the development would be occupied by middle aged or older people, there would probably not be more than 200 to 300 children, resulting in a "negligible" burden to the Carmel school district compared to the impact of a "regular subdivision."

LETTERS SPLIT

Before opponents rose to present their case, zoning administrator Robert Slimmon reviewed the letters received by the commission from official governmental agencies. Overall, he said, the commission had received 89 letters in favor of the development and 95 that were opposed.

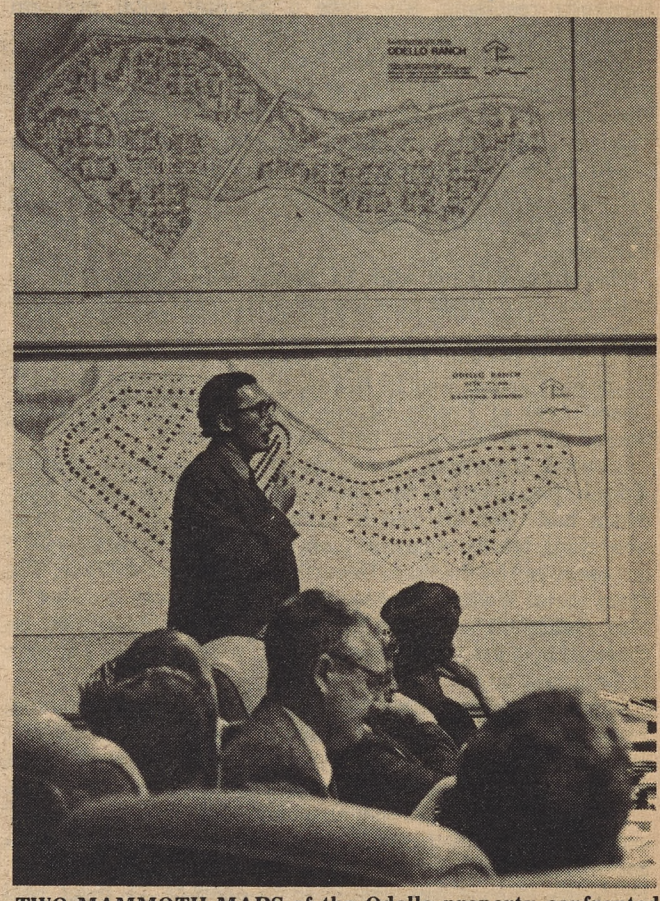
Among the letters Slimmon read was one from William Penn Mott, jr., director of State Parks, who opposed the requested rezoning because of potential harm to the wildlife sanctuary by the beach.

Farr led the opposition speakers, first showing slides of the Odello property to set the visual stage for what was to follow.

Carmel mayor Barney Laiolo read the resolution passed by the Carmel City Council in opposition to the development, and stressed a point that was to become a major theme of the opponents -- that the Odello plan "invites disaster from flooding and pollution."

Mrs. W.E. Bleick, president of the Monterey County League of Women Voters, read a statement which also stressed questions of flood plain development and flood control as the reasons for the LWV's opposition to any rezoning.

Earl Moser of the Sierra Club read letters from Robert Brattain, chairman of the technical advisory committee to



TWO MAMMOTH MAPS of the Odello property confronted planning commissioners at the hearing. At top is the general site plan for the 1,844 unit residential-tourist development proposed by City Reconstruction Company of Los Angeles. Below it is a map prepared by the developers showing how the property could be developed under existing one-acre zoning, with higher density strips along Highway 1. Kalvin Platt of Sasaki Walker Associates, the San Francisco architects for the project, describes the difference.

GREAT PATIENCE AND GOODWILL was demonstrated by a crowd of over 300 persons jammed into the Board of Supervisors' chambers for the Odello hearing. Some came at 6 p.m. to be assured of a seat, then had a three-hour wait before the hearing started.

the State Air Resources Board, and Professor George Haltiner, chairman of the Department of Meteorology at the Naval Postgraduate School, which warned of present and future smog problems.

Haltiner's letter said that Carmel Valley is frequently covered by a heat inversion layer, which, along with the mountains on either side, helps to trap pollutants in the Valley.

The real "clincher," from the opposition's point of view, was the testimony offered by Col. Herman Schull, former Army District Engineer for the State of Florida and former manager of the Florida Inland Navigation District.

Schull said that Carmel Valley is subject to flash floods, and that the Carmel River is presently unregulated by reservoirs or dikes. He compared the flood channel proposed for the Odello development, which would be designed to handle 25,000 cubic feet of water per second, with the recommendation of the last Army Corps of Engineers study that any improvements should allow for a rate of 40,000 cubic feet per second.

"Building on the flood plain of a river is an invitation to disaster," Schull testified. "I'm somewhat horrified that it might be done. I think flood control should be built into a comprehensive plan ... piecemeal plans should not be approved. It's possible that part of the Odello lands are needed for overflow."

William Davis of Hatton Fields, who spoke next, also raised the subject of flood plain zoning, and asked: "Who's going to bail these people out? We know it's going to be Mr. Taxpayer. The river has to have room to expand ..."

Also reading a statement was Mrs. Philip Gibson of the Carmel Area Coalition, who told the commission that the CAC represented 711 persons opposed to any increase in density for the Odello property.

"In an area of such beauty and national importance, only an acre of low density makes sense," Mrs. Gibson said. "There is nothing questionable about low density zoning for proper purposes."

CHOICE SEATING IN THE AISLES was all that was available for many persons attending the Odello hearing, which began an hour and a half late and lasted until 12:45 a.m. Sharing the center aisle here are Gunnar Norberg, William Davis and Mrs. Philip Gibson.

PROPERTY OWNERS OPPOSED

Several other groups also were represented in opposition to the plan, including the Audubon Society, the Rancho Rio Vista property owners, Carmel Highlands Property Owners, CVPOA, Carmel Knolls Property Owners, Carmel Views Property Owners, the Carmel Citizens Committee and, of course, OLAF itself.

Just as the public hearing was about to end, attorney Tom Hudson, sans horse, strode forward to defend the Three Ranches Plan once again. He said that he had tried to raise funds to purchase the Odello ranch for public use for over a year and a half without any success, and implied that he doubted that Farr would have any better luck.

Hudson also told the commission that "moratoriums are not part of the planning process."

It was after midnight before the commissioners themselves finally had a chance to speak.

Commissioner Keith Evans of Carmel praised Whiteman's willingness to delay development as a "generous offer", and said that if money is not raised within that time period, "I think Odello has a right to develop at a reasonable density.

He added that while the proposed density "may be too high,"he basically felt that the plan was a good one.

"I think we could go a lot farther and do a lot worse," he commented.

Evans also raised the possibility that the Odellos could, if they wished, sell off the property in five or 10 acre parcels "that would go like hotcakes."

Evans said it is not in the community's interest "to run a good developer out.

"I think the people in Carmel Valley accept floods as a calculated risk," he continued. "I don't think there is going to be any acceptance of flood plain zoning."

Evans also emphasized that he thinks the Odellos should receive full market value for their property, and that rezoning should not be delayed in order to hold down the possible purchase price for OLAF.

Commissioner Leon Stutzman also expressed concern about density and flooding problems, and said he felt time was needed to get answers to several questions that had been raised.

While saying he agreed with Evans on the need to set "reasonable density," commissioner Vaughn Parsons said density should be set in relation to the areas around the ranch. If it is to be decreased, he said, it should be in order "to make it a better development, not simply for appeasement."

"I would firmly oppose any effort of the planning commission to coerce the Odellos into a waiting period," Parsons added.

However, after planning director Ed De Mars listed several problems of density and design that the staff felt needed further study, the way was cleared for the final motion to continue everything until July 28.

A subcommittee composed of Stutzman, Evans and Marcucci is to work with the planning commission staff and the developers to work out details before then.

San Francisco has "kabol cars" and "pulooshen"...

Carmelo students take the train and discover anothe

The dates March 25 and March 26 had been circled in red on the calendar at Carmelo School just about forever. Or so it seemed to the excited youngsters who had been planning for, and working for, and waiting for the Day of The Train Trip ever since it was first announced last fall.

It was just about as hard as waiting for Christmas. But, as these pictures and first-hand accounts indicate, it was worth it. On Thursday, March 25, the Alpha unit at Carmeo boarded the Del Monte and rode as far as Watsonville, toured a round house and visited the Nestle's factory before returning to school for lunch.

And the next day, the Beta unit took the Del Monte all the way to San Francisco, where the zoo, the aquarium and the Golden Gate Bridge were all on the agenda.

One busload of Beta students was supposed to visit the Oakland Museum, but the Muni bus driver got lost and instead headed back south towards San Jose. So much for the East Bay.

All in all, the trips were experiences that will be relived again and again. And nobody can tell it better than the kids.

(Everything quoted here is verbatim, spelling mistakes and all. Teachers wanted the children to get down their thoughts first, while memories were still fresh. Corrections for spelling and grammar will come next.)

LETTERS HOME

"Dear Parents,

I had a fun time on the train. What I liked the best was the Nestle's place. When I looked out the window I saw some ducks. That was a good movie we saw at Nestle's. We went to the round house. It turned the old old steam engines around. Thanks for being a chaperone, Mother.

"The Watsonville people went in the diesel engine. Then we rode the bus to Nestle's and sang songs like 'Mary had a little lamb' and 'Rain Drops' ...

"We got a cocoa bean. If you brake a cocoa bean in half, it is what it tastes like when it doesn't have any sugar. And we saw how they make chocolate candy bars and candy at the fatory. (cq)

Love, Kathryn Seashore"

Tricia Thomas wrote her parents an eight-page letter, which included this vivid impression:

"On the train we went through a bigest tunnel I ever saw in my life ... When we got to the tunnel it was dark. It was darker than when you are in the house. If you turned off the lights at night and closed all of the curtains, the tunnel is darker than that, and the dark tunnel was a long, long long long way. The tunnel was fun to go through.

"I like when we were on the train and the kids were up and out of the seats on the train. The kids were in the bathroom or the kids were by the bathroom and all of the kids were getting a drink, and I like the train because when you stand up on the train you bounce up and down and some times you fall down. Once I fell down but I did not nurt my self ..."

Kimberly Kezeli wrote this succinct note:

"Dear Parents

Thank you for the trip. It was fun. I liked the candy factory. It smelled good. I like the seats. They were soft.

Love, Kim"

Harry Blackburn told his parents just about everything:

"Dear Mother and Dad,

Thank you for raising the money for our train trip. We went to the Zoo. I saw a lot of animals. We went to the museum. The museum had a lot of rocks. I bought a lot of things. The train was 9 cars long. We saw a dinosaur. It was 150 years old. There was a dinosaur bone. It was called the dinosaur touch bone.

"We went to see the snakes. There was a boaconstrictor. We saw all kinds of snakes. We saw the godin gate brig. We saw 5 feet and sharks. There was a mother shark. There was all kinds of fish. I saw a dolfin in a pool. I caught a pigeon. I bought 4 post cards. The trip was fun. We went under the Bay Bridge. It was a little smaller than the golden gate bridge. We came back at 8 a clock.

Love, Harry"

As a follow-up assignment, students in the Beta unit last week worked on notebooks about the trip. In one chapter they were supposed to answer the question: "How is the scenery different from Carmel Valley?"

Their answers were pure phonics, in terms of spelling, but the sentiments expressed should gladden the hearts of all who love Carmel Valley. Here are some excerpts:

"The scenry in San Francisco is like a crouded villeg with pulooshen (pollution) and bugs on the ground and dirty air. But Carmel Vally has trees and flowers and birds and butterflys and fireflys and ducks, gees and bushes and wild-flowers and sqrals (squirrels) and c

Red Cross fund drive in Valley continues

"Contributions to the Red Cross from Carmel Valley residents are substantially higher than at this time last year. Mrs. Stephen Schaffer, Mrs. Marion Chilson, Dean Brown and all their workers are to be congratulated," Graham Adams, 1971 Chairman for Members and Funds said last week.

Those workers who have not completed their calls or callbacks will continue as the valley chairmen are striving to set a record this year. Any residents who have been missed are urged to mail their checks to the Red Cross Chapter, P.O. Box A R, Carmel, where it will be credited to the appropriate valley worker.

Total collections at the end of March were $25,349 toward the goal of $35,775.

CARMEL WOMAN'S CLUB

William F. Stone, head of the Carmel High School art department, will address the Carmel Woman's Club at its regular meeting April 19, at 2 p.m. Mrs. Charles Fontenau will introduce the speaker whose subject will be art history.

Stone received his B.A. degree from the University of California at Berkeley and his general secondary teaching credentials from the School of Medical Illstration, Massachusets General Hospital, Boston, Massachusetts, as a certified medical and scientific illustrator.

Stone has lectured widely on the Peninsula and has had numerous one man shows. He has won many awards, among them best of show, Santa Cruz Arts Festival; third prize, United Nations Art Show, San Jose; second prize, water color division, Monterey County Fair; special prize in the Pacific Grove Annual Water Color Show.

Locally, his works have been exhibited at the Annual Religious Art Shows, U.S. Naval Postgraduate School; the Annual Pacific Grove Water Color Exhibits and the Monterey Museum of Art Juried Show.

He is a member of the governing board of the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, and the Monterey County Fair Art Board; and is director of a choral group.

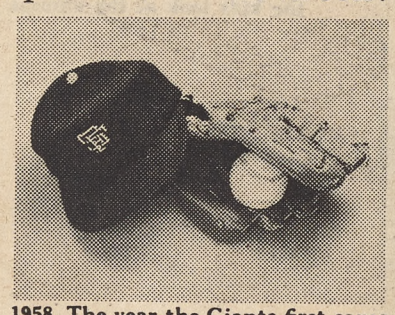
Pouring at the tea tables following the lecture will be Mmes. Russell L. Bradford, Weldon H. McBee, Donald B. Walker and R.G. Watson.

Hostesses greeting members and guests will be Mmes. Douglas S. Aiken, Alden Chace, Keith Davis, Conrad Omelman, Edna S. Preble, H.J. Templeton, Margaret S. Wilson, and Miss Alma Anderson. - Mrs. J.R. Lynas.

If you're an average PG&E home customer, you're paying 18% less per kilowatt hour for electricity than in 1958.

It's a fact. Even with the recent rate increase, the average PG&E home customer pays 18% less per kilowatt hour for electricity than he did 13 years ago. The reasons: several earlier rate decreases and zone adjustments, plus like other things, electricity is "cheaper by the dozen."

Sure, your average bill is probably higher today than it was in 1958. But that's because you've added more electrical conveniences and comforts to your home. Yet isn't it nice to know that it's still possible to enjoy these 1971 conveniences at less than 1958 rates.



1958. The year the Giants first came to San Francisco.

Of course, during recent months your bill was at the winter peak, for you used more heat, more light and cooked more hot meals. But with warmer weather and longer days just around the corner, you'll need less electricity and your bill will drop.

'Plaza Suite' another big success for Bill Asp

"Plaza Suite", which opened to large and very appreciative audiences at the Studio Theatre in Carmel last weekend, emerges as superb comedy. Directed and staged by Bill Asp, it must be recognized as a thoroughly professional production.

A Neil Simon comedy, which nowadays speaks for itself, it is sure-fire entertainment with dialog and situations which are both original and hilarious, and completely realistic if not entirely real.

"Plaza Suite" consists of three one-act playlets, each different and unrelated, except that they all take place in Suite 719 at New York's famed Plaza Hotel.

And also that each is a "slice of life" vignette, closely related to our present kind of society - with its brittle strands that don't always hold together.

Robert Heater and Gertrude Chappell are featured in each of the three situations, two as husband and wife, and are very much at home with the sophisticated dialog which has lofted Neil Simon to Broadway's theatrical heights.

Yet it is the intelligent and perceptive direction of Bill Asp which translates the unique kind of comedy created by a Neil Simon into a fully enjoyable evening of local theatre.

The first act tells the familiar story of a husband and wife married for many years but with declining respect and attachment. They cannot even agree on the day or date of their anniversary. And they agree to disagree on everything else. An affair with his secretary, played commendably by Marilyn Rose, comes to have greater meaning than 24 (or is it 23?) years of marriage.

In the second act, it is a notorious Hollywood producer who seduces his high school sweetheart, now 20-odd years later a New Jersey housewife with a dull husband and three children. Each seeks in the other what their own lives now lack, and what each wants and gets is a new sexual experience.

The cleverest playlet must be the final one. An expensive wedding awaits a young bride who locks herself in the bathroom of her parent's Plaza suite, and rejects all entreaties and threats to emerge. Miss Rose is the bride, and after all else has failed, the bridegroom, played by Richard Raines, is summoned in desperation, speaks three "in" words, and she emerges demure and fluttering, completely shattering her distraught parents.

Plaza Suite will entertain audiences at the Studio each weekend -- Friday, Saturday and Sunday -- this month and next. Professionally staged as it is, it shouldn't be missed.

New group organizes to 'preserve property rights'

A new group called P.R.O., composed primarily of Carmel Valley property owners, spoke out yesterday for the first time during a hearing before the Board of Supervisors on hillside zoning proposals.

Speaking on behalf of a seven-member board of directors, Timothy Condon of Garzas Road read this statement to the supervisors:

"I should like to make a statement as a representative of a newly-formed organization in Carmel Valley and vicinity. As the result of spontaneous demand, this group organized without benefit of public announcement or publicity.

"This organization is called P.R.O. It represents a growing group of people who uphold the Preservation of property rights with a Rational approach to Orderly growth in this area. We wish to go on record as supporting the existing ordinances and county regulations, which we feel adequately control proper development in Monterey County. We are most concerned that the HC and HP proposals do not reach the core of the problem before us, nor do they take into consideration the needs of the entire county."

Condon issued his statement after Morden Buc, chairman of a county-wide committee appointed by the supervisors to draft a hillside zoning ordinance, reported to the board that after six months of study, his committee split 5 to 5 on a proposed Hillside Planning ordinance.

In addition to Condon, the P.R.O. directors are Bog Wilson, Milt Frumkin, Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Al Hood, Ernest Olsen and Bill Barker, a Salinas Valley rancher who also owns property in Carmel Valley. Barker was a member of the hillside zoning committee, and voted against the draft Hillside Planning ordinance.

According to Mrs. Hood, who is serving as temporary secretary of the board, the group's primary purpose is "to uphold the preservation of property rights with a rational approach to orderly growth in this area."

She said many people have indicated they are "disheartened" by the "negative approach" used by other groups in this area, and would like to see a "positive and rational approach" to problems confronting this area.

She said that in about two weeks P.R.O. will put out a general mailing and solicit membership from people living on the Monterey Peninsula.

School board candidates at final forum Tuesday

The last chance for voters to listen to and question the eight candidates running for the Carmel school board will be next Tuesday, April 13.

The Parents Club at Tularcitos School will sponsor a candidates' forum that night, starting at 8 p.m. in the multipurpose room. Clayton Neill Jr. will be the moderator.

Everyone in the community is invited to attend, whether or not they have children at Tularcitos School.

Three vacancies on the school board will be filled in the special election on Tuesday, April 20.

Candidates are incumbents Hilton M. Bialek and Richard T. Wilsdon, and Mrs. Eleanor Horne, Mrs. Adele H. McFann, Glen A. Myers, Robert A. Oross, Pamela D. Smith and Dr. Charles R. Snorf.

Fire causes $20,000 loss at Valpey home

A fire that apparently started in a hallway by a bedroom caused $20,000 damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Valpey on Esquiline Road last Thursday evening.

No one was home when a neighbor spotted flames shooting through the roof of the frame residence at 6:30 p.m. Fire Chief Chip Collins said the blaze was "well under way" when the department responded almost immediately with three pumping units and 23 men.

Collins said most of the fire damage was confined to the hallway and bedroom, but the rest of the house suffered extensive smoke and heat damage. The fire is still under investigation.

There was an additional bitter postscript to the disaster for Valpey, who returned home while the fire was underway. Dashing up to his house, he left his wallet behind in his car, and when he went back later, the wallet was gone.

The fire department also answered a fire call at 6:02 p.m. Wednesday, when an electric wall heater shorted at the home of C. Lester Biggins, 21 Village Drive. Damage was estimated at $25.

On Sunday at 2:23 p.m., Norma Yokomizo of 29 Berwick Drive was taken to Community Hospital by the department's Red Cross ambulance as a medical emergency.

Spring Fair coming to Carmel Rancho

A magic show, fortune telling, a street fair and other events are planned for the Second Annual Spring Fair to be held at the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center on Saturday and Sunday, April 17 and 18 at the entrance to Carmel Valley. The project is a presentation of the merchants association group and there will be no charge for the entertainments scheduled.

"Lorna's Sparkling Magic Show" for children is scheduled for 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday on an ourdoor stage near the Hatch Cover restaurant. Sylvia, a fortune teller who uses cards, will be located in the area behind Brinton's Hardware both Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. The colorful street fair of last year's similar event will be held in the mall near "Imports &" on both days.

Sunday will include a new presentation for gardeners, "Cuttings and Pots Swap Day", when there will be an exchange of plants and garden cuttings in a section of the parking area on the Center's east side. Green thumbers will exchange favorite garden slips, and all such garden material will be by donation. A similar event has been held for years in Monterey, and this may be the start of an annual tradition at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center for neighboring garden enthusiasts.

The center will be decorated as it was last year at this time, with helium filled balloons.

Authentic Luau to be held at Fairgrounds

Saturday, May 29 is the date set for the most unique social event of the year -- an authentic Luau complete with underground roast pig and lovely Polynesian entertainment, followed by dancing in a beautiful island setting designed to please the most discriminating party-goer.

Staged in the Monterey County Fairgrounds exhibit building, this event, sponsored by the active one-year-old Women's Auxiliary of the Monterey Peninsula Council on Alcoholism, promises to be outstanding.

Beneficiaries of the event's proceeds will be the Alcoholism Council whose purpose is education on alcoholism -- not for or against drinking -- and the one-month old Alano Club, 575 Calle Principal, Monterey, a social club for those recovered from the alcoholic disease and others interested in the nation's No. 1 health problem.

Organizing this unusual affair is routine for general chairman, Mrs. Alan "Ty" Gillis of Carmel Valley, a native of Hawaii and fourth generation descendant of the Afong family. She has spearheaded successful luaus in Florida and New Mexico for up to 1,000 people.

With her background of experience, Ty is planning for 500 persons and has secured the professional services of the internationally known Walter Napoleon Family of Hawaii and Oakland to prepare the Hawaiian delicacies. They will arrive several days in advance to ready roasting pits and make other necessary arrangements.

Included on the fantastically exciting menu is Puaa Kalua (underground whole roast pit), Maia (baked bananas), Moa and Laiki (chicken and long grain rice), Hala Kahiki (sweet pineapple), Lomi Lomi (salmon), Poi, and Haupia (coconut pudding).

The party begins with Mai Tais at 6:30 p.m. with dinner for everyone planned at eight o'clock. Guests preferring cocktails other than Mai-Tais may order no-host cocktails. Tickets for the Mai-Tai hour, dinner, entertainment, and dancing are $20.00.

The public is cordially invited to attend and may obtain tickets by calling Mrs. Richard Sippel, ticket chairman, 624-1788, or Mrs. Virginia Frohman, Auxiliary President, at 373-4169 or write P.O. Box 1302, Carmel.

Hold open house at new Rippling River School

This last Sunday, April 4, the Rippling River School in Carmel Valley was the scene for an Easter picnic and open house for the families of students and guests. The school has been in operation for two months on the site of the former Rippling River Resort.

The school has plans to increase its enrollment and teaching staff for next year, according to Ena Grundy who is associated with the school in an advisory capacity. It was announced at the picnic that a summer camp will be run from June 21 until July 30.

During the afternoon, parents and guests wandered about the beautiful grounds and explored the classrooms. The special reading techniques which are used in the school were explained and the students' work was displayed in the classrooms - creative writing and poetry, art work, pottery and wood-work. The students make their own desks in the school's wookwork shop.

The students performed in a play narrated by Marianne Gawain and the actors were Tommy Lockwood, Anna and Gretchen Vanderveen, Mrs. Illiam Bean and daughter Melina, Billy Love and Kernan Coleman. Other activities included an Easter egg hunt, a treasure hunt, and an Easter pinata made by the students.

Petpourri

By JUDITH A. EISNER

JUDGING FROM feedback we've received to reports of dog pack abuses, there is a sizeable proportion of the residents of this area who are interested in some form of compulsive restraint for dogs.

Although we don't believe in climbing on a soapbox most of the time, we do feel that the problem of uncontrolled dogs is potentially so dangerous that you ought to be kept informed of what the area's canine delinquents are up to.

Last week, a teacher at Carmelo School called to pass on his personal encounter with loose dogs.

This teacher likes to bicycle in to school as often as possible. On the day he met the dogs, he was cycling down Rancho San Carlos road. As he rides a racing bike, he had his feet strapped to the pedals; he also had a kite on his back, since he was teaching a lesson based on the Lions Club Kite Festival.

"At least four dogs" came after him, charging the bike. He was both afraid to stop and unable to jump off because of the foot straps. He ended up tumbling over onto his side, bike, kite and all.

Fortunately, he was not hurt and the bike only received minor damage. But he was furious!

He turned the tables on the dogs and chased them home where he received neither assistance nor apology from the people. A call to the sheriff -- he was that angry -- told him what others have been told -- that unless he wanted to enter into civil suit for damages, he had no recourse through the law.

The six or eight dollars damage to his bike isn't as important to him as the principle of the matter. As he put it, "What's going to happen next time I go through there?"

THE SECOND incident concerns another doe who was chased, caught and terribly mauled by a dog or dogs on Panetta Road. Although she was not killed outright, she was so badly hurt and in such panic that the most humane thing to do was to put her to sleep.

She is at least the third deer to be killed, directly or indirectly, by dogs in this area within a month's time.

DOGS also broke into a private corral in Palo Colorado Canyon recently and attacked several sheep. One ewe was found disembowled but alive and was put down; another, though badly mauled, was nursed back to health.

That's all we heard about last week. We wonder what other "incidents" must have occurred that haven't reached out ears.

CONSUMER ADVOCATE Ralph Nader has recently promised to investigate misleading claims made by dog food manufacturers.

One of the things that you should be aware of in buying dogfood is that the advertising of these products is geared to your sense-appeal, not your dog's.

Unless you've been a dog or at least eaten dogfood, you really can't judge the palatability of the food. Therefore, the fact that something is advertised as being chock full of juicy moist "chunks" really isn't saying very much. All it does is make you think about chunks of beef.

Read the labels! Very often you'll find no mention of anything even faintly resembling beef or any meat. Those yummy "chunks" can be cereal or by-products (which can be hoof and horn) or latex rubber!

FAT CONTENT is also misleading advertising. Certain brands indicate that they don't contain "messy fats", and to an extent, this is true. The fat content in dried dogfoods, meal or kibble, has been reduced to retard spoilage and fat staining the sack.

The problem is that the manufacturrs lead you to believe that dogs don't need fats in their diets. This can be harmful.

Most dogs don't get nearly enough fat because they are fed commercial feeds. A healthy dog can utilize as much as 20 percent of his total diet in fat -- beef trimmings, oleo, bacon drippings, salad oil. A hard-working dog can profit from 30 percent fat in his diet. That means that one ounce out of every five ounces of food can be fat.

Generally speaking, we don't advocate stuffing your dog full of fat. But everyone should add extra fats to his pet's diet, in one of the above forms, unless a veterinarian has specifically forbidden such additions.

A teaspoon of bacon drippings a day for a small dog is adequate; a tablespoon or two for a large dog is about right.

xxx

EASTER always brings up the spectre of dead baby chicks and ducks and bunnies that have been misguidedly given as Easter Sunday toys.

Although we do not know of any dealers in such animals on the Peninsula, each year several stands spring up in north and south county areas peddling these babies by the roadside.

Please remember that these animals are not suitable presents for small children. They are frightened and fragile; and they cannot be humanely discarded the next day.

Stuff your Easter basket with real toys. No animal should ever be made into a plaything.

"LENT IS A TIME TO SHARE ..." and so Mrs. W.G.B. Hatch's 6th grade Religion Class decided to give of themselves, and began a search for someone in need of aid. Learning of work done by the priests of Trinity Missions, the young people went to various motels and explained their project which was to collect used bits of soap to be recycled through St. Mary's Mission in Savannah, Tenn. Here Dorothy Hatch oversees the sorting of a current supply preparatory to shipping. CV GARDEN CLUB TO MEET

The Carmel Valley Garden Association will meet April 15 at 8:00 P.M. in the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School. Burr Robbins, club president, will present a program on innovations on building a compost heap. Guests are always welcome.

NURSERY SCHOOL BENEFIT

The Carmel Valley Copoperative Nursery School is planning a benefit for May 15 at the CV Community Chapel. "The Potpourri" will feature children's art; a boutique, and numerous other departments including a Book Nook, with Mrs. John Hallisey in charge. Maggie is inviting donations of books for her sale. They may be dropped off weekdays between 9 and 11:30 a.m. at the Nursery School at the Chapel.

MAY DAY

The Carmel Valley Garden Association and the Village Committee are joining forces to present a Flower - Art - and Pottery Show on May Day (May 1) in the multipurpose room of Tularcitos School.

Members of the committee include general chairman, Burr Robbins, Lynn Sims, show chairman, Rosemary Roberts, publicity, Lucile Chambers and Mrs. Fred Scott, registration, and Mrs. Paul Anthony, hospitality. Virginia Ford is in charge of the Art division and the Village Beautification Committee heads the Pottery exhibit. The latter will feature exhibits and demonstrations by Rudi Marzi, John O'Neil and Beau Kvenild. Rosemary tells me that brochures were distributed to Valley businesses and Nurseries over the weekend.

Do obtain one and plan your entries whether they are Art, Flowers - Junior or Senior, there is something for everyone in the family.

THE IRON CURTAIN was slightly lifted last week at the meeting of the Fidelity Club when Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Deck appearing as guest speakers showed slides of their trip to Russia. The Decks, who had toured in 1960 and returned ten years later found the changes and improvements encouraging. The Decks toured Poland, East Germany, Czeckoslovakia, Bulgaria, and Romania, but concentrated their slides on Leningrad and Moscow where their preference for "off the beaten track tours" gave a far better insight into the Russian way of life.

Program chairman Sterling Mummert noted that the action shots of Russian women building roads and other acts of manual labor brought favorable comments for the system from the men in the audience, but was received with far less favor by members of the weaker sex! The program was preceded by the monthly potluck dinner.

MR. AND MRS. DAN ALBERT were guest speakers at last week's meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Carmel Valley. Dan, Monterey High School football coach, and his wife, Jeanne, will direct Camp Amigos when it opens for its fourth summer day camp program in mid-July at All Saints' Day School. The program was of particular interest to the Valley Kiwanians since they are one of the sponsors of the non-profit, racially, and economically mixed camp which accomodates 60 campers from the Peninsula.

Officers for the 1971 season were recently elected. They include George Schroeder, president of Camp Amigos board of directors; Mrs. Pearl Carey, vice president, Barbara Quarles, secretary; Mrs. Dennis Gorman, treasurer; and Mrs. Peter Sherman, general coordinator. Retiring president George Lockwood accepted appointment as the fund raising chairman. The goal is $5,000 and if met would allow the camp to remain open for five weeks.

HOME FASHIONS AND LINGERIE, coordinated and commentated by Naomi Takacs were modeled by Enid Rauber and Terri Hendrix for the ladies attending the party last Wednesday night at the Rancho Tulares home of Mrs. Thor Rasmussen. Attending were Mmes. Edna Wolfe, Terry Bishop, Pam Miller Gerald Cook, Monique Hansens, Lloyd Swanson, Berit Grinde, and Clem Clark.

MILLER'S LODGE, a popular spot for Valleyites seeking recreation on the Arroyo Seco has been purchased by two men from Arizona, Michael Mendenhall and John P.M. Laurence. The land mark on the Arroyo Seco River has been operated by Mr. and Mrs. Miller Rosendale since 1943. Mr. and Mrs. George Mendenhall of Gonzales, parents of Michael Mendenhall, will manage the resort.

HAPPY GRANDPARENTS on Panetta Road are Mr. and Mrs. Carrell C. Smith who welcomed a granddaughter, Juli Claire Hornbeck on March 8. Parents of the infant are Mr. and Mrs. Parker Hornbeck, who currently make their home in Alameda, but will be moving this month to Portland, Oregon. Adding his welcome was Juli's brother, Parker B. (Tiger) Hornbeck II. The baby's mother will be remembered as the former Janel Smith who graduated from Carmel High School, Monterey Peninsula College and Chico State College. Her father, who received his master's degree from the Naval Postgraduate School is employed by Bechtel Inc.

WILL'S FARGO did not open last week in Carmel Valley ... APRIL FOOL! Will's Fargo ALWAYS opens its doors and with them, the official Valley resort season each year on the first of April. The record crowd of first-nighters happily found few changes ... the same genial host, Will Fay, and his staff ... an expanded menu including prime rib and Clifford's chicken gumbo ... and the greetings of friends who make meeting at Will's openings a tradition such as ... Messrs. and Mmes. John Zelinsky, Charlie Scoville, Ben Bingaman, Don Miner, Robert Darwin, Steven Schaffer, Mark Fields, Dean Campbell, Larry Huddleson, Paul Porter, Jon Storm, C.Dalton Hatch, Lloyd Days, Mickey Appleton, I.T. Johnson, Karl Kuntz, Chuck Woodson, Gus McCarthy, and Ray Hackworth. Also, Dr. and Mrs. Grant Fletcher, former Valleyites who now live in Palo Alto; the Leo Diners and the Frank Vails who drove down from San Francisco; Gladys Lewis who was celebrating her birthday; Olene Dick, Bettie O'Neal, Helyn Crow, Dona McKenzie, and Billie Mans ... and Carmel Valley's NOTORIOUS bandit, Luis Wolters.

FLUFFY AND FEMININE was the traveling attire selected by her father in which Miss Kirsten Michele Buche made the trip from the Community Hospital to the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Dale Buche on Los Agrinemores. The 6 lb. 14 oz. baby girl wore a white Italian hand knit pants suit trimmed in pink rosebuds, white lace tights, and a bonnet of white satin and lace. With four handsome sons — Kier, Brocke, Brent, and Kurt — the news of the arrival of a daughter on March 26 for Gail and Dale, was relayed happily among their many friends attending the Tularcitos Carnival the following day. Grandparents all planning to visit in the near future include Mrs. Bertha Higgins of Flint, Michigan and Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Buche, Boone, Iowa.

THE CONFERENCE of the American Lutheran Church Women held in Palo Alto had representation from St. Phillip's Lutheran Church in Carmel Valley including Mmes. Lowell Battcher, Frank Moody, Kirk Hiaasen, Jerry Collell, George Schardt and Bruce Ryan. Rev. E.J. Cornils, South Pacific District executive vice president, was guest speaker.

"AN OLD OAK LEAF CLUSTER" to the Quail Lodge which has just been tapped with an "OUTSTANDING" rating by AAA ... a remarkable repeat accomplishment and one awarded to only SIX hotels and motels in California and Nevada out of ... 9,000.

"WELCOME NEIGHBOR" was the greeting given Peggy Yocky at a Koffeemgiven last week by Miss Dorothy Gonzenbach at her home on Los Agrinemores. Recently stationed at Skaggs Island, Lt. and Mrs. James Yocky and daughter Jennifer who is almost two, will make the Valley their home while Lt. Yocky studies Russian for a year at the Defense Language Institute. Greeting Dorothy's guest were Mmes. Shepard Peterson, Larry Cummings, Luther Washington, Leslie Vanatta and Dale Buche.

A VALLEY BARTENDER ... World War II Vintage ... was disdainfully attempting to restore the health of three depressingly hung-over U.S. Coast Guardsmen ... Bloodshot eyes unable to focus ... shaking hands unable to guide medication or coffee to their parched lips ... they were ANYTHING but examples of our Nation's finest! Lest their motley appearance cast aspersions on his establishment, our friendly innkeeper hastened to explain their plight to curious customers. It seems that with a number of their comrades-in-arms they had met -- fought -- and LOST a "Battle of Beverages" with British sailors of the HMS PUMA.

The meeting started friendly enough ... then taunted by the jeers of the English lads (one of whom claimed the title of "Champion Milk Drinker" shortly after the PUMA docked in Monterey) the Americans boasted that "of course we lost the milk contest because we Yanks imbibe in nothing but intoxicants!" Up went the Union Jack ... the challenge was gleefully accepted by the British ... with stipulations that they would not drink whisky ("Too American") and by the same token they would not expect their friends from Monterey to drink ale or rum ("Too English"). "I've got it!"

cried a voice (belonging, no doubt to a subversive agent), "Let them drink TEQUILLA!" ... and they did. It is now written in the log of the Puma that their crew came, saw, and conquered the US Coast Guard who were last seen recuperating at a Health Spa in Sunny Carmel Valley!

THE CARMEL VALLEY Golf and Country Club welcomed a number of new members in March including Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Elmer Ochs of the Presidio of Monterey, (Gen. "HATCHWAY," the Rancho Road home of Capt. (USA ret.) and Mrs. W.G.B. Hatch shared a lot of the excitement surrounding the appearance of pianist Leonard Pennario, guest soloist with the Monterey County Symphony. His mother, Mrs. John Pennario of Los Angeles arrived to spend the week as their houseguest, and although his week was busy with rehearsals, concerts and a calendar filled with social events, the Hatches still managed to visit with an old friend. Dorothy first met Leonard when he was assigned to her home room class in a Los Angeles high school.

He had made his debut at the age of 12 with the Dallas Symphony and was well on his way to receiving his present international reputation. A man of many interests he is an avid bridge player and has played with experts all over the world ... is a skilled swimmer and finds it an excellent way to relax ... and enjoys horse racing. It was through the latter hobby he met Bob Hebert, Racing Handicapper for the Los Angeles Times. A highlight of his Peninsula visit was being named godfather of the Heberts' grandaughter, Jennifer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mote of San Jose. A luncheon followed the baptism at the Highlands Inn with the Hatches and the Pennarios guests of the Motes and the Heberts. Leonard enjoyed his visit to the Inn where he had lived during the filming of the movie, "Julie", starring Louis Jordan. The movie theme, "September Song" was played by the talented artist.

A few Valley neighbors met Mrs. Pennario on Tuesday at a luncheon given in her honor by Dorothy. She of course attended each of her son's concerts and enjoyed a tour of the Seventeen Mile drive with Maestro Haymo Taeuber as her personal guide.

A star of opera, Mrs. Rachel Morton, who now resides in the Valley on Tierra Grande and Mrs. Anna Burros attended a brunch at the Hatch home for their houseguest and her son on the day of their departure. Mrs. Morton who wrote a music column in the Long Beach papers, had featured Leonard in her columsn.

Enroute to Los Angeles, the Pennarios planned to tour San Simeon. Leonard will appear in concert in Los Gatos in May.

A FIRE ALARM in Robles Del Rio at the same time a cocktail party was scheduled at the new Fire House preceding the Installation Dinner of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department, was accepted as routine by firemen's wives who are used to compensating for the disappearance of the family auto and a babysitting-husband enroute to those never-on-our-schedule-Valley-emergencies.

The cocktail party was cancelled ... dinner at the Rancho Del Monte Resort fashionably late ... followed by a reunion at the fire house with the exhausted fire fighters.

The installation was impressively done by candlelight with Mrs. Betty Kavanaugh of Monterey, presenting each incoming officer with a colored candle significant of her pledge. The tables had been beautifully decorated by Mrs. Christopher Spaulding, Mrs. William Parham and Mrs. Erasimo Belleci with red and white floral arrangements of sweet peas and carnations.

Retiring president, Mrs. Stan Roberts, was presented with a gift certificate and a plate with the Auxiliary insignia in appreciation of her year in office. Each of the incoming officers received red corsages and white ones were presented to those retiring.

Installed were Mrs. Larry Busick, president, Mrs. Christopher Spaulding, vice president, Mrs. William Ijams, treasurer, Mrs. John Radon, recording secretary and Mrs. Erasimo Belleci, corresponding secretary.

Norman Bundgard to show slides

at Chapel Guild meeting April 14

The Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild will meet on Wednesday, April 14 in Fellowship Hall. Dessert will be served at 12:15 preceding the meeting. Mrs. Roy Kaminske is chairman of arrangements, with Miss Esther Trevino as co-chairman. They will be assisted by Miss Sarah Oppenheimer and Mrs. Elsie Siemens.

Norman Bundgard is to be the speaker and will show his photographic slides of wildflowers and insects, particularly of the Carmel Valley area. Mr. Bundgard is in charge of research for the Paul Masson Vineyards which have 3000 acres under cultivation between Hwy. 101 and the Pinnacles. His interest in photography is an outgrowth of his years of familiarity with the agriculture of the Salinas Valley, his love of the out-of-doors, and his studies of insects and plants at the University of California at Davis. Mr. Bundgard's research all leads toward improved grape production and involves studies of such factors as temperature, fertilization and levels of irrigation.

The Guild meeting is open to all interested women of the community and visitors are warmly welcome.

Easter Week Services at Carmel Valley churches

The following special Easter Week services have been announced by Carmel Valley churches:

Carmel Valley Community Chapel -- There will be a Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 7:30 p.m. The choir will sing "there is a Balm in Gilead," and the Rev. Donald Johnson will speak on "The Cup of Hope."

The Easter Sunday service will begin at 11 a.m. Sunzah Park will sing a solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple," and the choir will perform the special anthem, "We Will be Merry." Rev. Johnson's Easter sermon will be entitled "Fear Nothing, He Has Risen."

St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church -- A Maundy Thursday service of Holy Communion will be celebrated at 10 a.m. On Good Friday there will be a service of meditation and prayer from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m.

There will be three services on Easter Sunday. At 8 a.m. will be Holy Communion and Easter Greeting. Identical Flowering of the Cross and Choral Eucharist services will be held at 9:15 and 11 a.m. Each child will bring a small bouquet with his or her mite box, and will receive a plant to take home.

St. Phillip's Lutheran Church -- There will be a Maundy Thursday Communion Service at 7:30 p.m., followed by a color film, "The Redeemed". On Good Friday there will be devotions from 11:30 a.m. to noon.

On Easter morning the Luther League will serve breakfast from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. The Easter service will begin at 10 a.m. The public is invited to attend.

The First Baptist Church of Carmel -- Good Friday candlelight communion services are planned for 7:30 p.m. The primary department of the church is planning an Easter egg hunt and party on the afternoon of Good Friday from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Services on Easter Sunday include Sunday School at 9:30 a.m., followed by morning worship at 11 a.m. led by Pastor Rex Lindquist.

Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula --"The Vigil of Maundy Thursday" will be observed tomorrow evening at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Howard E. Bull will conduct the Easter Worship Service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday.

BY MRS. B.C. FORRESTER

Coffee, as a stimulating beverage, was known in Ethiopia before A.D. 1000, from when it spread to Egypt and to Turkey, and Arabia. By the 17th century it had reached most of Europe, and as the American revolution was closely tied into the tax on English Tea, early Americans felt it more patriotic to drink coffee, and coffee has become and remains the American beverage for breakfast, mid-morning snack, luncheon, afternoon snack, dinner and after dinner snack.

Ancient recipe books abound in items on how to make good coffee -- I give you one from Peterson's Magazine, September 1858; To make good and clear coffee grind 2 large tablespoons of coffee, put it into the coffee-pot, and fill up the pot with quite boiling water, set it over the fire for one minute, then pour in the white and the crushed shell of an egg. Let it stand ten minutes, and it will be found as bright and clear as water. (Ed. Note: And taste much like it too).

Coffee had become so important and costly by that year, housewives were seeking substitutes. Peterson's Magazine comes to the rescue and gives them the following:

Coffee substitute from Parsnips. Scrape clean 3 or 4 good parsnips, cut them into thin slices, bake till well brown, grind or crush, and use in the same manner as coffee, from which it is scarcely distinguishable.

We have some quaint tales in the past of coffee being very much of a stimulant, and of goats cavorting drunkenly after having chewed the berries of the coffee tree. That was purported to be the herdsman picked the berries and brewed them, which they found to be stimulating but not intoxicating. In fact, the theory that hot strong coffee conteracted the effects of alcohol in the human system and "sobered" a drunkard, was accepted in the early twentieth century. This theory is held to be without merit today, the hot coffee only spreads the alcohol more quickly in the body, but does not dissipate it.

Instant coffee was experimented with as early as 1858 and came in the market in 1867.

Ways of preparing coffee seem endless. We have all the Cafes from the French cooks, such as,

Cafe Royal: Place sugar lump in an after dinner coffee, regular or flaming brandy spoon. Pour on cognac; set ablaze. Stir the melted sugar into coffee.

Cafe a l'orange: Add a bit of orange curacao (liqueur) to each cup of strong black coffee. Provide cinnamon stick to stir coffee.

Cafe au lait: To make this breakfast drink of France, also much used in Brazil, use a pot of hot coffee and equal amount of hot, rich milk. Pour simultaneously into large cups.

Cafe Cappuccino: Make thick black coffee. Combine steaming coffee with equal quantity steaming milk. Pour into tall cups. Top with cinnamon or nutmeg. Serve with sugar.

Viennese Coffee: Make extra strength coffee; sweeten to taste. Top with whipped cream.

Cafe Diablo: In chafing dish place 6 lumps sugar; 8 cloves; 1" stick of cinnamon; 1" strip lemon peel, cut up; 3 oz. cognac. Do not stir. Ignite cognac; stir. In a minute, slowly stir in 1 quart strong coffee; ladle into cups.

Italian style coffee: Serve strong hot coffee in demi tasse cups or 4 oz. glasses, with a twist of lemon peel and sugar.

Then of course there is iced coffee, which may be served with white corn syrup, or iced coffee cubes, topped with ice cream or served with whipped cream.

The coffee houses of England and the cafes of France served as gentlemen's meeting places where politics and theories and women were discussed until said gentlemen dispersed for dinner at a time before restaurants were established (1765 in Paris, earlier in the inns of England). Battles were won, Statesmen confounded over the innumerable cups of coffee consumed at the coffee house the most popular at the moment, and still men (and women now) go where they can get the "best cup of coffee".
